

The 15th volume of the “Bibliothèque de l'Institut d'Études Sud-Est Européennes” gathers fourteen papers presented at the 12th International Congress of South-East European Studies (Bucharest, September 2-6, 2019). With a threefold structure (Byzantine, Slavo-Byzantine, and Romanian), the volume explores the complex relationship between religious rhetoric and the various forms of power in the Byzantine and other medieval and pre-modern societies located in the political and cultural orbit of Byzantium. The contributions are diverse in geographical, chronological, and methodological outlook and converge to highlight the richness of the subject, thereby contributing to a better understanding of the religious rhetoric of power in Byzantium and South-Eastern Europe.

The contributors are Ivan Biliarsky, Marian Coman, Lidia Cotovanu, Ovidiu Cristea, Florin Filimon, Paul Magdalino, Smilja Marjanović-Dušanić, Mihail Mitrea, Radu Nedici, Radu G. Păun, Adrian C. Pirtea, Andrei Prohin, Tudor Teoteoi, and Andrei Timotin.
